

'A RAMBLE THROUGH THE ACTUARIAL COUNTRYSIDE*' – BUILDING CAPABILITIES FOR BUSINESS IMPACT

PRESENTED BY: ANDREW MATTHEWS AND DAVID NICOLSON

* This title honours the work of famous actuary, Frank Redington who also said, 'The actuary who is only an actuary is not an actuary'

Wednesday 31 August 2011

5:30pm to 7:30pm

Ernst & Young

Boardroom Level 23

8 Exhibition St

Melbourne, VIC, 3000

Actuarial service at its best is about analysis and intention, relationships and results. Andrew Matthews and David Nicolson will share their experiences to facilitate an informative and practical session on what is required of actuaries and professionals today and importantly, as young actuaries, what we can do to develop those skills. Andrew and David will discuss:

- Foundation Actuarial Skills - analysis for 'making the invisible visible'.
- Impact and Influence Experiences - contributing to commercial performance.
- Organisational Development - building team and organisational capability.
- Career Development - a conversation on achieving our potential.

Andrew Matthews is a Partner in Ernst & Young's Financial Services practice. He is an Actuary and consultant with executive management experience. He has worked in Appointed Actuary and risk roles at CGU and Insurance Australia Group (IAG) in Australia, NZ and the UK as well as leading an insurance business unit and establishing an internal actuarial service at the TAC after grounding in insurance with Trowbridge Consulting.

David Nicolson specialises in organisational change, leadership development and talent management. He is an Associate Director of Leadership Development at Directioneering, a career management service provider. He is a practiced coach and mentor to senior business leaders and CEOs and has 30 years of international experience with top-tier organisations.
