Presented by: John Maroney

The Financial Stability Board (FSB) designated the first group of Global Systemically Important Insurers (G-SIIs) on 18 July 2013. How were these insurers identified and what changes in supervision are expected? The FSB and the International Association of Insurance Supervisors (IAIS) worked closely together on the G-SII project over the last three years.

On 18 July, the IAIS also published reports on the assessment methodology and policy measures for G-SIIs and on a macroprudential policy and surveillance framework for insurance. How will these developments affect insurance supervision over the years ahead? All statements and reports are available on www.iaisweb.org and www.financialstabilityboard.org.

John Maroney joined the IAIS in 2009, after 30 years experience in the Australian financial sector. In April 2013, John was appointed as Head of Financial Stability, responsible for the full range of IAIS's financial stability activities (including those related to systemic risk and macroprudential surveillance and supervision), in addition to coordination with the FSB.

Prior to joining the IAIS, John was CEO of the Actuaries Institute and remains involved with the global actuarial profession, as Vice Chair of the International Actuarial Association's Enterprise and Financial Risks Committee.
