NEW SOLUTIONS FOR NEW PROBLEMS – AGEING, HEALTH AND RETIREMENT LIKE WE’VE NEVER SEEN BEFORE

Stuart Rodger

Synopsis: It's more than a decade since the "Ageing Population" issue began to move from an "in the future prediction" to a "we need to make policy decisions now" issue in many developed countries. In that time the problems and changes that arise when people live longer have become clearer. We are now reaching a time when the solutions and responses are starting to take shape. Using mainly the Australian examples, this presentation illustrates the way in which markets and societies are starting to adjust to this slow but fundamental change in the way human beings live their lives.
